

174
B 91

A Journal of Bryology and Lichenology

THE BRYOLOGIST

VOLUME 116
NUMBER 1
SPRING 2013

American
Bryological and Lichenological
Society

CONTENTS

116(1): 1–96

- 1 From the Editorial Board
- 2 Sarah E. Stehn, Peter R. Nelson, Carl A. Roland and Jennifer R. Jones
Patterns in the occupancy and abundance of the globally rare lichen Erioderma pedicellatum in Denali National Park and Preserve, Alaska
- 15 Marcos J. Kitaura and Marcelo P. Marcelli
A revision of Leptogium species with spherical-celled hairs (section Mallotium p.p.)
- 28 Norton G. Miller and Roxanne I. Hastings
Taxonomy and distribution of Grimmia (Bryophyta) in mountain regions of the Northeastern United States
- 34 Daniel E. Stanton and Henry S. Horn
Epiphytes as “filter-drinkers”: life-form changes across a fog gradient
- 43 Lloyd R. Stark and John C. Brinda
An experimental demonstration of rhizautoicy, self-incompatibility, and reproductive investment in Aloina bifrons (Pottiaceae)
- 53 Denilson Fernandes Peralta and M. Elena Reiner-Drehwald
Cheilolejeunea laciniata (Lejeuneaceae, Marchantiophyta), a new species from Southeastern Brazil
- 58 Marta Regina Pereira, Cristian de S. Dambros and Charles Eugene Zartman
Will the real Syrrhopodon leprieurii please stand up? The influence of topography and distance on phenotypic variation in a widespread Neotropical moss
- 65 Kevan Berg, Shelley L. Hunt and Andrew M. Gordon
Epiphytic lichens in jack pine and black spruce plantations in northern Ontario, Canada: diversity and community patterns
- 78 William R. Buck, Bruce Allen and Ronald A. Pursell
Recent literature on bryophytes—116(1)
- 89 Brendan P. Hodkinson and Sarah Z. Hodkinson
Recent literature on lichens—228

REVIEWS

- 95 Alan Fryday
Common interior Alaska cryptogams

NEWS AND NOTES

- 96 News and Notes